Local county supervisor:

New aide, new digs

AMY CAMERON & MICHAEL McGOWAN

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A new local office for Yolo County Supervisor Michael McGowan is pretty much open for business, McGowan reported Monday.

Although the office near Triangle Ct. won't "officially" open for another week or two, visitors may drop in now and find either McGowan or his new aide, Amy Cameron, in residence.

Funding for the local office was authorized by a 4-1 vote of the county board of supervisors late last year. Prior to that, West Sacramento residents (and residents of Clarksburg, also in District One) had to rely on communicating with McGowan's Woodland office.

Replacing Cass Sylvia, McGowan's former aide who has just been sworn in as new Yolo County Public Guardian, is West Sacramento resident Amy Cameron.

Cameron, 26, is a Sacramento native who graduated from St. Francis High School and earned a bachelor's degree in recreation and leisure studies from California State University, Sacramento.

"After that, I worked at Loaves and Fishes (which provides food and services for the homeless) for awhile," said Cameron. "Most recently, my full time job was working for the KP Corporation in West Sacramento, where I was a project manager."

Cameron also has worked part time for the West Sacramento Parks and Community Services Department and as a campaign worker for Assembly Democrat Helen Thomson.

She is the daughter-in-law of former Yolo supervisor Clark Cameron, having married his son, Clark, Jr., and moved to West Sacramento in 1994.

Cameron's position as McGowan's aide is funded by the county as a 26-hour per week job.

McGowan was elected chairman of the Board of Supervisors on Jan. 5 (part of a traditional rotation of the chairman's gavel), and announced in a press release that he "would like to concentrate on Yolo County developing partnerships with each Yolo County city, community organizations and UCD."

"Some ways to develop this partnership will include having Board meetings videotaped and aired on cable television so all community members can be involved (a practice slated to begin on Tuesday). . . and by opening a new county district office in West Sacramento."

The new office is located at the new county social services complex just off of Triangle Ct. and across from the new city police station. Its address is 500 Jefferson Blvd., Suite 500A, and its phone number is 375-6440.

Vandals destroy church statue

Spree involved two churches, real estate office and parked car

News-Ledger Staff Report

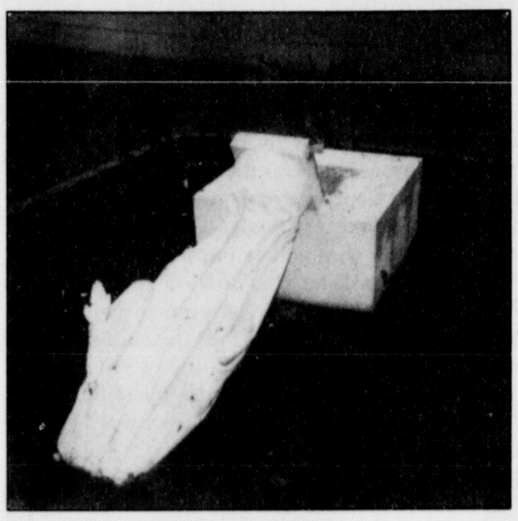

An early-morning vandalism spree Sunday left a West Sacramento church with a badly damaged statue of the Virgin Mary.

At approximately 7 a.m., Our Lady of Grace Catholic Church on the corner of Park and Jefferson Boulevard was vandalized for the second time in just 6 weeks. A marble statue of the Virgin Mary, which stands in front of the church and has long been its symbol, was once again pushed over, breaking the head off at the neck. The head of the statue was taken by the vandals. A window in the back of the rectory was also shattered and Father Edward O'Hara, the pastor of Our Lady of Grace, immediately phoned the police.

"The police response was wonderful," said Father O'Hara. "They were here within minutes of my phone call."

Father O'Hara estimates that the value of the marble statue of the Virgin Mary to be between $5,000 and $6,000 and said it will now have to be completely replaced.

"After the first act of vandalism," said Father O'Hara, "our parishioners were able to find a man in Rocklin who was able to reattach the head to the body. Unfortunately, this time the nose was also destroyed and I'm almost certain that a new statue will have to be made."

Toppled and headless statue of the Virgin Mary at Our Lady of Grace Church

Father O'Hara said that parishioners of Our Lady of Grace are doing their best to get over the senseless acts of vandalism.

"It's very unfortunate that someone would want to do this," said Father O'Hara. "Some of our parishioners are quite depressed about it, others have cried. Hopefully those who are responsible will be apprehended and it will never happen again."

According to police reports, the vandalism spree began shortly after 6 a.m. with a call that another church on the 800-block of Merkley Ave. A witness reported that several suspects dressed in dark clothing were causing damage -- and the witness later gave police the name of one of them. A church window and a church bus window were both reportedly broken.

Then there were reports of suspects breaking the windows of a car parked on Park Blvd., and of the damage being done to the statue at Our Lady of Grace Church, and then the report of a window smashed at Century 21 Real Estate at 910 Jefferson Blvd., near Park Blvd.

Pieces of the church statue were found inside the real estate office, and 18-year old suspect Russell Burgess was apprehended by Sgt. Ed Hensley nearby in possession of the statue's head, police reports stated. Also in the suspect's possession were a couple of bags of candy with the name of a mortgage company on them, matching bags of candy from inside the real estate office.

Burgess was arrested for the felony vandalization of a church and for possession of stolen property.

Lt. David Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Department said a 15-year old and a 16-year old local boy had been identified as suspects as well, but had not yet been apprehended. The same three suspects were believed to be involved in all these incidents of vandalism.

'River Ranch' map approved by planners

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The planning commission Thursday voted to approval the layout of the 173-home "River Ranch" subdivision north of Linden Road and east of Our Lady of Grace School in West Sacramento's Southport region.

The project, proposed by Stroud Properties on behalf of owner Turner Estate Company, had met objections from long-time neighbors across the street near Linden Rd. Neighbors were concerned about how the new subdivision would affect traffic on Linden Road and how the new homes themselves might "crowd" older homes on the south side of Linden Road.

"(The developer) made a lot of changes," said planning commissioner Jeff Henry, adding that the neighbors obtained some of the items they had place on their "wish list" while failing to receive others -- including a 65-foot landscape buffer between the new homes and Linden Road.

One of the changes was to eliminate three intersections planned for the subdivision's ingress/egress at Linden Rd. Two of those intersections were to come from a U-shaped road into the subdivision, and a third was to be a cul de sac. The eliminated roads would have met Linden Road in "T"-shaped intersections.

Left in the plan are roads entering River Ranch opposite the existing streets of Mohave and Rubicon.

Henry commented about the 65-foot buffer, saying it was not possible for the city to demand such a thing from the developers.

"They actually wanted a park in front of their houses," he said. "They wanted the developer to drop eight lots and turn them into a buffer."

But he added that the new plan calls for a city-maintained buffer along the north side of Linden Road, consisting of a 5' or 6' foot landscaped strip with trees, then a sidewalk, and then another 5' or 6' landscaped strip, followed by the architecturally "themed" wall separating the new homes from the buffer.

Henry said the result will be something much nicer than the way new subdivisions are sometimes built in other areas of the Sacramento region.

ABOUT TOWN

By Daryl Fisher

Dr. Dennis Kelleher is the Superintendent of Schools for West Sacramento's Washington Unified School District and he lovingly refers to his wife, Lynn, as "my better half."

"I have always greatly admired Lynn," said Dr. Kelleher of his wife, who has been blind since a childhood accident took away her sight. "Her glass is always half full and she tries harder than most to find the good in people. She is courageous to a fault, always positive, and absolutely determined to be all she can be. She really has been an inspiration to me and our children."

DR. DENNIS KELLEHER and wife LYNN KELLEHER

Lynn was only six years old when she fell off a swing and hit the back of her head on the hard concrete below her, fracturing her skull. Her brain immediately began to swell and life-saving surgery was needed to release the pressure. Doctors feared the procedure might cause permanent damage to her optic nerve, and unfortunately, it did.

"My memories of all of that are very vague," recalls Lynn without the least bit of bitterness or self-pity in her voice. "Blindness is just something that I've lived with most of my life and although there have been obstacles to overcome, it's mostly just been a matter of learning about my surroundings and then getting on with life. As a teenager, there were some difficult times, especially socially, but the only time I recall my lack of sight really presenting a big problem was when I was about to graduate from high school, and they weren't going to let me march with all my classmates, because the procession began at the very top of the football bleachers and everyone was afraid I would stumble and fall. But I was determined to graduate with the rest of my class, so I practiced for a few days with a friend and everything went just fine."

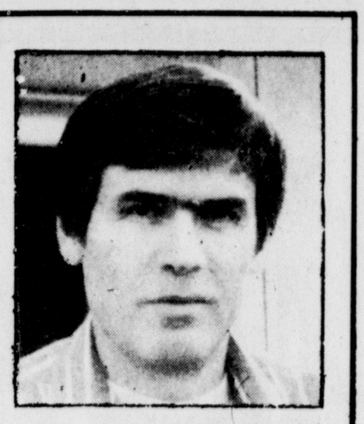

Dr. Kelleher and his wife met while they were attending different universities on different sides of the country.

"I was at Cal Berkeley and Lynn was a freshman at Bucknell, which is in Pennsylvania, when I went back east to visit a friend," remembers Dr. Kelleher. "Believe it or not, we met on the same day of the Watergate burglary, which we find a little interesting, and after exchanging letters for quite awhile, we were married."

When Lynn, who describes her most important job as being a wife and mother, decided she

Do we really want everyone always telling the truth?

With the Senate trial of President William Jefferson Clinton scheduled to get underway this week, I recently found myself in a somewhat heated discussion about how important it is for our political leaders to take a strong stand against lying.

"We simply cannot have a man in the White House who lies all the time!" said my obviously upset work friend.

"But don't all politicians lie to us now and then?" I asked. "I mean, didn't George Bush tell us to read his lips, and didn't Ronald Reagan say he didn't trade arms for hostages, and just recently, didn't that tower of virtue and bipartisanship, Henry Hyde, say that the House Judiciary Committee proceedings would be fair and bring honor to the Congress?"

"But all of that is different," he assured me with conviction.

"How so?"

"Because Clinton lied under oath and he's a horrible example for our children. The man is nothing but a lying scum bag!"

Later that evening (I think it may have been a day or two later, actually) I happened to run across a newspaper editorial written by a New Jersey high school senior named Caroline Knox, whose well thought out words seemed to take up just about where my friend and I had abandoned our argument.

Paraphrasing Ms. Cox, she said, 'I learned my core values practically from birth from my parents, my grandparents and my teachers and no politician has any impact on them. If you really want to know what many young people have learned from watching the televised hearings, it's that most politicians are windy, arrogant, sneaky, self-serving, obnoxious and power hungry. What I expected from our leaders was thoughtful judgment about what should be done with a president who got caught in a web of deceit trying to cover up an illicit affair. Too many members of Congress pontificated about the evils of lying under oath, as if all lies are the same and deserve the same punishment. Every fourth grader knows that's not true.'

She went on to say, "I am not defending lying under oath. I am not defending lying at all. What I am defending is the right to look at each instance in a context. These politicians weren't protecting young people. They were insulting our intelligence. We know all law breaking is not equal."

Although it's a pity Ms. Cox is too young to run for Congress, she did get me thinking about the subject of lying again, and earlier today I think I just may have come across the definitive answer to the whole darn problem!

Did you know that you can now purchase a telephone which will let you know if the person on the other end of the line is lying to you? Well, you can! Listen to this -- from the company producing them:

'Believe it or not, the new Truth Quest telephone from Sharper Image analyzes every word of your phone conversations -- searching for telltale voice modulations that indicate stress and a lack of truthfulness. In other words, it's a phone with a built-in lie detector. An LED (whatever that is) above the key pad glows green when you're hearing the truth, red when you're being lied to, and yellow if you need to be cautious about what you're hearing.'

The company does admit that no lie-detector is foolproof but says the Truth Quest telephone can help you judge a caller's honesty, "especially since you're cut off from the subconscious visual clues that give you a feel of someone's sincerity in face-to-face dealings."

So, for those who have had enough of all this day-to-day lying that seems to go on, both in the White House, the Congress, and throughout the nation, they can purchase the Truth Quest phone (which comes with a 60-day, money-back guarantee), for only $129 plus shipping and taxes.

I happened to mentioned all this to my wife, and the last I heard, she was considering getting one. Something tells me our first conversation would probably go a little something like this:

Me: Hello, dear, it's just me, calling from the News-Ledger. Boy, have I put in a hard day's work. Her: (with her phone glowing red) Is that right?

Me: Oh, yeah. The phone here has been ringing off the hook all day long, although quite a few of the calls have been from readers telling me how much they like my column. What's for dinner?

Her: (the phone still red) Meat loaf.

Me: Really? Well, that's great. You know how much I love your meat loaf.

Her: (the phone still red) So, are we still going out to the movies tonight after dinner? I really want to see 'Shakespeare in Love'. It got two thumbs up you know."

Me: Well, as much as I love anything that has to do with Shakespeare, I'm probably going to have to come back to the office after dinner and work for another couple of hours. Sorry.

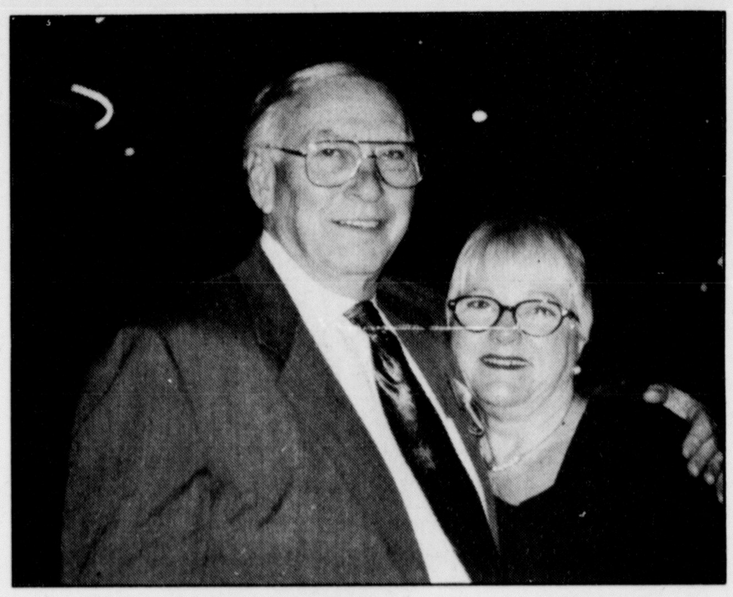

Her: (the phone still red) That's okay. How about this weekend, then?

Me: Oh, sure, definitely.

Her: (the phone still red) Daryl, did you know that this telephone has been glowing bright red ever since I picked it up? Green means you're lying and red means you're telling me the truth, right?

Me: Right....at least that's what the guy who sold it to me said.

Claude's children are Lynne and Willie Cherrington of Fair Oaks, and Sharon Collins, Gale Horton, and Starr and Niki Needham, all of Las Vegas.

In Betty's letter to the News-Ledger informing us of her marriage, she said, "Claude and I feel very lucky that our lives have come full circle and we would like our many friends in West Sacramento to know how happy we are to have found each other again and that they are more than welcome to visit us if they ever come to Las Vegas."

Claude's mother, Thelma M. Needham, was instrumental in the creation of West Sacramento's Arthur F. Turner library, where the Children's Reading Room was dedicated to her memory in 1976.

RCHS retires Matt Sidhu's jersey

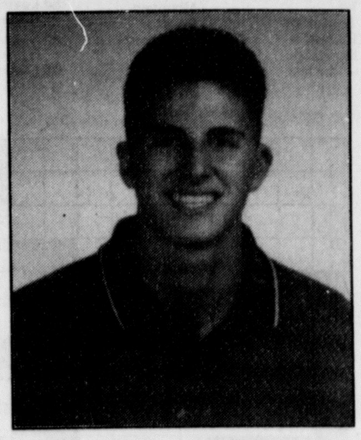

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor

This past week, in ceremonies preceding a home basketball game against Golden Sierra High School, West Sacramento's River City High School officially retired uniform number 12, which had been worn by senior starting guard/forward Matt Sidhu before his tragic death in an automobile accident late last year.

"Both our students and the players on our basketball team wanted to retire Matt's number," said Vice Principal Ken Whittemore, "and I see it as a fitting tribute to a young man who was both a fine athlete and person. The ceremonies were done with a lot of class and it was a memorable evening for all of us."

Matt's jersey, which was framed in glass and fastened high on one of the gymnasium walls, was unveiled by Alfredo Rodriguez, the captain of the River City Raider varsity basketball team and one of Matt's best friends.

"It was an honor to be a part of the ceremonies," said Alfredo. "Our team has dedicated our season to Matt and we really miss him. Sometimes, especially on bus rides to away games, we really talk about him a lot, and wish he was still here. Everything we do as a team this year on the basketball court will be for Matt."

MATT SIDHU

River City basketball coach Jon West, who spoke at the ceremonies, said, "It was a very emotional night for both the players and the fans. The gymnasium was packed, but when the ceremonies for Matt started, you could hear a pin drop. That young man had a big impact on a lot of people and it was hard to find the right words to say, but I did want to make sure his family knew just how important Matt's memory is to all of us, and that he is still a very real part of our basketball team."

River City went on to win the game against Golden Sierra, in overtime, and improved their record for the year to 12 wins and 5 losses.

"It was a great high school basketball game," said Coach West, "and it was really nice to be able to come away with a victory on Matt's night."

Signups approach for West Sac Little League

The West Sacramento Little League will hold registration for players ages five through 16 at the Fireman's Hall at 1966 Park Blvd. in West Sacramento on the following Saturdays in January: 9, 16 and 23, from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m.; and on the following tuesdays in January: 12 and 19, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Fees are $40 for ages five and six; $50 for ages seven through 12; and $60 for ages 13 through 16. A $10 late fee will be charged to any player who registers after these sessions.

Because Senior League will be played in divisions (13/14 and 15/16) for the first time this year, it is extremely important that all Senior League players register on these dates so that the number of teams needed in each division can be determined. Please note that due to a national rule charge, players age 16 are now eligible for Senior League and all are encouraged to register. Little League tryouts (ages eight through 12) will be held at Memorial Park on Saturdays January 30 and February 6 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The West Sacramento Little League has been serving the youth of this community since 1954.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial:

Trend continues for newspapers in 1998

The most recent edition of the trade journal for national newspapers lists all papers which were bought and sold in 1998.

The list for the state of California starts like this:

The Pulitzer Publishing Company has bought the Five Cities and Nipomo newspapers from Dick and Maxine Blankenburg. The Five Cities paper had been in the Blankenburgs' family since 1959.

Bakersfield's daily newspaper has bought a chain of newspapers from Tehachapi News, Inc.

USMedia Group, a division of a Missouri corporation, has purchased 14 non-daily newspapers from West Coast Community Newspapers.

Central Valley Publishing, Inc., has bought Gilroy's shopper from Hal Polak.

Liberty Group Publishing of Illinois has bought the Gridley Herald from William D. "Bill" Burleson.

And so on.

These are just the first few entries in the list, but the trend is obvious: individual owners continue to sell newspapers to out-of-town (often out-of-state) corporate chains, and corporate chains continue to sell their newspapers to (usually bigger) corporate chains. The whole thing looks like one of those pictures of small fish being eaten by bigger fish, which are then eaten by even bigger fish, and so on.

There are certain advantages to being part of a chain, and this space won't be used right now to repeat the advantages of being independent. But after a look at the trend, it is worth a mention that in 1964 two West Sacramento men established the News-Ledger. One died, the other still owns the paper, and that's the end of the ownership story here. The News-Ledger is the only local, independent newspaper in the county at the moment, although there is at least one "alternative" publication which is independent.

To find out if being locally owned makes a difference in the quality of local journalism, just compare to the News-Ledger to the product offered down the street by a company from Vallejo. Then vote with your feet.

Letters to the Editor

On impeachment

Here I sit -- breathless with anticipation. History is being made (on all T.V. channels) as the trial of the century begins...Dum-de-dum-dumb!

Out waddle the House managers, proceeding solemnly to the Senate. Here they come, a single file of white, middle-aged males -- fat, bald and full of baloney.

What a momentous scene -- one body of pompous gas bags ceremoniously reading charges against the President to the other body of pompous gas bags. Such pageantry as a semi-senile President Pro Tem bangs the gavel and a silence falls over a chamber of fools.

Did the Fathers of the Constitution envision that Republican saviors would so bravely fight to rid the country of such demons as Monica, Vernon, Betty and Bill. Did our Founders know the GOP would struggle so valiantly to lead us into the promise land of corporate profits and fascist rule.

Citizens, take heed, it's only been six years and 60 million dollars. Another year (more or less) and we'll all know where Bill touched Monica.

Thanks for support

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the West Sacramento's Little Skipper chapter of the Children's Home Society of California for their many cards and words of kindness at a very difficult time.

The passing of one's mother has to be among the most traumatic of times; but with the warmth of the remembrances from my many friends at Little Skipper's, I have found this heavy burden a little lighter to bear.

ID cards

Regarding the White House mandate (bypassing Congress) to have a national I.D. card with all of your personal (and public) information encoded on either a magnetic strip, or an embedded "chip." If this was a voluntary program, it might even sound better, however, it wouldn't be. In fact it reeks of "Big Brother." Just think of what the insurance industry could do with a data base like that. How about the organ transplant industry, especially the faction that wants to make organ "donation" mandatory? (I understand cornea "donation" already takes place without the permission of the donor. After all, who's going to check?)

I carried a draft card because it was required to show I was ready to give service to my country. I volunteered for service, and didn't tear up or burn my card, because I believed then (and still do now) that military service was part of the price of freedom. However, if I choose to carry my personal medical information with me, that's my choice, and my business, not the government's. I carry a "Social Security" card, which has printed on it, "Not Valid for Identification." I state now that if such a National I.D. card and number become mandatory, I shall destroy it. I shall practice the same forms of civil disobedience our founding fathers did in their protest against the oppression and tyranny imposed by the legally constituted government of the time. (Yes, Virginia, our founding fathers disobeyed the laws of the land in order to wrest control of the personal freedoms of common, ordinary citizens, away from a centralized, power hungry, paternalistic government.)

When we let so called "Czars" rule us (U.S.), then I feel we've strayed a long way from the ideals and freedoms that we paid so dearly for in blood during the past two hundred and some odd years of our "Grand Experiment." If allowed to continue, the specter of uninformed representatives of the government demanding of us "Where are your papers?" may not be very far away. Remember the axiom that "Those who give up a little freedom, in order to gain a little security, deserve neither?" It still applies. In fact, it's even more pertinent, as the improved technology to keep track of more and more of our personal information proves more and more irresistible to the growing faceless, nameless, unaccountable bureaucracy, that we call government.

Notes from the Chamber of Commerce

WE MEAN BUSINESS!
By Don Hill, Executive Director

The West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce is doing great things! The challenge is getting the word out, since so much of our work is done behind the scenes.

Many people see a Chamber of Commerce as a social organization (and we do that also), or just an elite club for certain businesses (not us), but the main reason the community should support the Chamber is because of the work we do behind in the background to make the business community run smoother.

Through our many committees, we chip away at the issues faced by small, medium, and large companies. We effect change, in many cases, through our network of contacts, and through the experts that share the Chamber's goal of making West Sacramento the Premier City.

As an example, our Governmental Affairs Committee is made up of engineers, architects, planners, developers, and builders. We look at the issues facing our growing community tackle them with many years of combined experience.

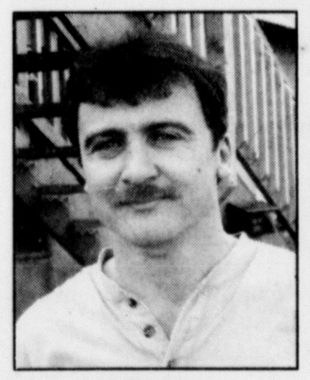

Another great example is our Education Committee, made up of educators, business owners, and parents of school age children, knows that better schools and better students, ensures that our business community will continue to flourish.

The Chamber has spent the last 11 months reestablishing its goals and is now working harder than ever for the community... the business community, and the entire community.

To present the new Board of Directors, and honor people in the business community who have excelled in 1998, the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce will install its new President and new Board members at the Annual Installation Dinner, Tuesday, January 19, 1999 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Club Pheasant.

This will be a time to meet our new President, Jeff Henry, of Johnson Construction, and to socialize with the West Sacramento business community.

Henry is a local resident who knows the West Sacramento community well. Charlie Moore of Petroleum Tank Lines will be our master of ceremonies, and our outgoing President, Betty Pinkston, of Jack Nadel Inc., will also be our guest of honor.

Jeff Henry

The Chamber Installation Dinner is always a great event, and this year there are even more things to be excited about. The West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce is working hard for the local business community and we invite you to learn more about our organization.

Youth charity benefits from 'Newman's Own' brand

From the Youth Guidance Connection

As the 1998 recipient of proceeds from the Goodwill Alliance between Newman's Own and Raley's/BelAir, Youth Guidance Connection has received a contribution of $10,000 from Paul Newman.

Paul Newman's food products are sold in grocery stores under the label of "Newman's Own," and he donates all after-tax profits to educational and charitable organizations identified by the management of each grocery store chain that sells his products.

Michael J. Teel, president and CEO of Raley's, selected Youth Guidance Connection to receive the Goodwill Alliance award for the second consecutive year. "Because Youth Guidance Connection has been actively involved in reducing juvenile crime and violence, the organization is an appropriate recipient of this award," Teel said. "The staff and volunteers at YGC are to be commended for their nine-year record of success at helping area young people become productive members of society."

Youth Guidance Connection is a nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization established in 1989 to assist at-risk and high-risk young people within the juvenile justice system without duplicating the efforts of other programs. YGC supports and strengthens communities by providing at-risk and high-risk young people and their families with positive alternatives to negative behaviors. To date, YGC has served more than 5,000 young people and their families.

wanted to have children, not everyone was immediately supportive.

"Lynn's mother was a little worried that a sightless person would have difficulty keeping track of young children once they started running around all over the place," said Dr. Kelleher with a smile, "but Lynn quickly solved that problem by putting bells on my son's and daughter's feet and she never had any trouble locating them after that."

"My mom has an incredible sense of hearing," said Kathleen Kelleher, Lynn's 18-year-old daughter, who graduated from River City High School last year and is currently a freshman at Cal State, Monterey. "When I was young, one of my favorite things was getting into the cookie jar, so my mom stuck it way up on top of the refrigerator where I couldn't reach it. One day, when my mom was in another room, playing the piano, I decided to sneak into the kitchen and get myself a few cookies, but she immediately heard me dragging a chair over to the refrigerator, and that was that -- no cookies."

Lynn, who has worked in the field of education much of her life, is currently employed as an instructional aide at River City High School and until just recently, had a seeing-eye dog who not only helped her navigate from class to class, but was also very popular with her students.

"I had the same wonderful dog for almost a decade," said Lynn, "but last year she decided she didn't really want to work anymore. Seeing-eye dogs are just like everyone else. Sooner or later, they reach an age when getting up and going to work just isn't all that much fun anymore, so I retired her. But I still have plenty of help getting where I want to go. I like to think of my students as little angels all over the campus."

"The thing about Lynn," said Dr. Kelleher, who is legally blind himself and whose determination to live a full and successful life is a story in itself, "is that you don't want to tell her she can't do something. She is very independent and all the hustle and bustle of life doesn't intimidate her in the least. She was raised on the east coast and is used to life in big cities. To her, a handicap is only what you make of it and our life together has been remarkably normal. A few things are different, like the fact that Lynn puts plastic braille labels on the cans in our food cabinets and neighboring movie-goers want to strangle me when I keep whispering to Lynn what's happening on the screen, but other than little things like that, we are just your typical married couple. She has definitely been an inspiration, though, and this I know for sure, her place in heaven isn't in doubt."

"We are all inspirations," said Lynn with conviction. "Each and every one of us."

In addition to Kathleen, the Kellehers also have a son, 21-one-year-old Peter, who is currently attending the University of California at Davis.

is walls," he commented. "They don't have the same landscaping we will have here. Here, you will see more of the landscaping growth than you will of the wall."

Henry has also told the News-Ledger that residents of the east Linden Road area have long enjoyed living in the pastoral, rural part of West Sacramento, but the activists who became involved in the River Ranch project seemed to have a healthy attitude about it. They realized that growth was inevitable, he said, and seemed to be working to simply make the new growth as high in quality as possible.

After residents challenged the plan, the planning commission put it on hold at its Dec. 3 meeting. The subdivision plan will now head to the West Sacramento City Council for approval. It could be the first major development to be built in West Sacramento since the early 1990s.

traordinary overwhelming effect on friends and family. Survivors of suicide loss often state that no other loss has been as painful or confusing. Feelings of guilt, anger, and sadness can create a complicated grief process. In a group with others who have shared a similar loss, support comes from exploring, sharing, and clarifying feelings. Because suicide grief can have an ongoing impact, individuals are encouraged to attend no matter how long ago the suicide occurred.

There is no fee for this group, as it is funded by the Ladd Clark Memorial Fund and Suicide Prevention of Yolo County. The groups will be facilitated by Sandra Sinz, LCSW. The group sizes may be limited, so please call the Suicide Prevention business office at (530) 756-7542 to register for the group or to discuss whether this group may be helpful for you or a family member.
